

A LITTLE

..SHOE TALK..

We are just about to enter the bad, wet weather of winter, and a little short piece of shoe advice, free gratis for nothing won't cost anybody anything, and may possibly do some one a little good.

Now and then in the dry summer months a cheap shoe may, by careful use be made to give fairly good service, but the test of our Kentucky winter weather is too severe for anything except the very best of solid leather shoes to stand. If there is a weak spot any where in a shoe, wet weather will certainly find it out. If the counters are paper, or the insoles are paper, or the heels are paper, one day in a rain will tell the tale, whereas the shoe might have, by care, worn a couple months in dry weather.

If a shoe has spongy soles or flakey uppers, one day's wet weather will tell the tale, and your feet will be wet before you have been out an hour.

Now our advice, in view of the above facts and in the light of twenty years experience is, "don't buy cheap shoes at all, but if you will have them, buy them in the summer time, but never in the winter."

Call for the best and insist upon getting it, wherever you are trading, and our word for it, you'll spend less money for shoes if an you have been spending.

Of course to get the best shoes, any little girl or boy in the public schools will tell you, you'll have to get Anderson's

DROPPED DEAD.

Well Known Lady Dies Very Suddenly

Expired Without Warning After Retiring to Her Room.

Mrs. Bobbie K. Bronaugh, a widow living on Sixth Street, died very suddenly of heart disease at her home Wednesday night about nine o'clock.

She was apparently in her usual health and was on the streets during the day. Some members of the family had been out to church and upon their return Mrs. Bronaugh went up stairs to another room to renew the fire, which was about out. She took a lamp in her hand, which was placed upon a table and those below heard a heavy fall. Running up stairs Mrs. Bronaugh was found lying in front of the grate unconscious and in a dying condition. She expired in a very few minutes. She evidently dropped dead from heart disease. No one was in the room with her at the time.

She was about 65 years old. The funeral services will take place to-day.

LOST THREE FINGERS.

Little Alvin Clark Sustains a Painful Accident.

Alvin Clark, a carrier boy of the New Era, had three fingers of his right hand crushed off by a job press yesterday afternoon, at the New Era office. Rupert Wilson was running the press and the little boy was waiting for the paper to come out.

In some way he placed his hand on the machinery and the accident occurred. He is a son of Mrs. Lizzie Means Clark and is 11 years old. Dr. Stites dressed the fingers, which were cut off at the second joints.

GREAT LUCK.

Christian County Hunting Club Meeting With Much Success.

The Christian County Hunting Club are having fine sport in Arkansas this season. So say letters received from some of the members. Game of all kinds is plentiful and geese, ducks, squirrels, partridges, etc., are bagged almost without number. Several deer had also been slain up to Tuesday and the hunt is not yet over.

Capt. S. R. White, of Julien, killed an immense buck and his happiness knows no bounds.

CASES COMPROMISED.

Defendant Paid 20 per cent. of Judgment and Flatter Settled.

The case of J. H. Spurlin, charged with bastardy, was compromised in County Court Wednesday. At the last term of Circuit Court a verdict for $1,000 damages was returned against Spurlin on a charge of seduction under promise of marriage, and this two was included in the compromise, defendant paying $200 and the costs, and the matter was dismissed.

NEW TEACHER.

Miss Irving Succeeds Mrs. Mary Pattin Ware.

Mrs. Mary Pattin Ware has resigned her position in the Public Schools and Miss Irving, of Elizabethtown, Ky., has been elected to succeed her. The change takes effect at once.

Mrs. Ware and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Pattin and her brother, Frank Pattin, will leave in a few days for Cuba, where they will make their future home.

STRIKE A FAILURE.

Miners Refuse To Obey Orders To Quit.

The Union Officers Still Trying To Call The Men Out.

Madisonville, Ky., Nov. 28.—The latest claim of the mine workers is that the mines of the Schreeb Coal Company, located at Schreeb, will not be able to run to-morrow unless the company agrees to work union men. The miners' union officials are jubilant, and are telling those who call at headquarters that it will only be a short time until every mine in the district will be closed down unless the operators agree to recognize the union.

Few accessions, however, are known to have been made to the ranks of the men now idle in Hopkins county. The mine workers' officials claimed that a number of men employed at the mines of the Monarch Company had quit and joined the union. The Courier-Journal representative saw four of the men who had brought their tools and asked if they had come out through sympathy with the union. Their answer was: "We just quit."

The operators are as confident as ever and say the Mine Workers' Union will never succeed in organizing the miners of Hopkins county. Oak Hill mines, located at Nortonville, had a full force at work to-day, so the manager reports. This is the mine President Woods said would not work to-day.

The Courier-Journal representative visited the mines of the St. Bernard Coal Company at Earlington, but could find no union men there. The men at this place seem to be well satisfied, and the casual observer would be apt to remark that the chances for organizing the men here are very slim.

HAND BADLY CUT.

L. & N. Engineer Meets With Painful Accident In Nashville.

Mr. S. R. Hackney, of this city, engineer on the Hopkinsville and Nashville accommodation, got one of his hands badly cut Wednesday.

PRIZING FOR DELIVERY.

Weed Being Shaped Up For The Market Here.

While there is considerable activity being displayed among the tobacco men very little of the weed has yet been prized for delivery, but the prospects are good for receipts to greatly increase from now on, as the weather for the past few days has been fine for pricing tobacco in order for handling.

Loose dealers have already made many purchases and considerable of the unprized article has been brought into the city. Prices being paid are proving very satisfactory and some real good tobacco is commanding extra figures.

STOLE THE CASH.

Rex-Huggins.

The marriage of Mr. Hugo Rex and Miss Ellen Huggins took place at the home of the bride's parents at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and was witnessed by a limited number of the most intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Rex. This marriage was followed by an elegant supper, after which the newly married couple left for their home six miles west of this city.

The groom, as was stated in Tuesday's KENTUCKIAN, moved here from Minnesota and is a very successful farmer and popular gentleman.

His bride is the pretty and popular daughter of Mr. R. H. Huggins and has a host of friends who wish her much happiness in the wedded life.

Miss Nellie Bryan returned home to Evansville yesterday, after a lengthy visit to her aunt, Mrs. Gano Henry.

Who would think there was insanity behind a drop of water? But there is. It was a favorite theme in the old days to fasten the victim where water should slowly drip on his forehead. In a little while he was a howling maniac.

Women do not, as a rule, realize how the steel drains which sometimes afflict them must at last rest on the mind. Sanctions, if they are irritable or peevishness. At other times the condition passes beyond unreasonableness to insanity.

With the relief of the body, from disease, Dr. Pierce's favorite prescription gives also a cheerful mind and contented spirit. When the drains and pains are stopped the mind soars up like a balloon from which dead weight has been removed. Mothers who never knew a happy moment when the birth hour confronted them, and younger women who found a month to a period of mental depression as well as physical suffering, have found a perfect cure by the use of "Favorite Prescription." It contains no alcohol, neither opium cocaine or other form of narcotic.

"I suffered with female weakness about eight years, tried several doctors but derived no benefit until I began to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. John C. of Nashville, Tenn. "I have been so benefited and so happy that I have recommended it to my other patients. I have taken six bottles and I feel like a new person."

"I took your medicine six months and felt like a new person," writes Mrs. J. W. of Baltimore, Md. "I have been so benefited and so happy that I have recommended it to my other patients. I have taken six bottles and I feel like a new person."

SACRILEGIOUS PERFORMANCE

One of Carter County's Commissioners Publicly Baptized.

Greenup, Ky., Nov. 22.—John F. Lewis and Albert Romey baptized J. P. Keeton, one of the Election Commissioners of Carter County, in the chilly water of Tygart creek, near Iron Hills furnace, in payment of an election bet.

A large crowd was present and speeches were made by various politicians of both political parties.

The Iri R. Hicks root Almanac.

Whatever may be said of the scientific basis upon which the Rev. Iri R. Hicks bases his yearly forecasts of storm and weather, it is a remarkable fact that specific warnings of great storms, flood, cold wave and drought have been plainly printed in his so famous Almanac for many years. The latest startling proof of this fact was the destruction of Galveston, Tex., in the very day named by Prof. Hicks in his 1910 Almanac, as one of days to be storm along the Gulf coast. The 1901 Almanac, by the first storm complete and beautiful yet unbroken in the now ready. This remarkable book of over two hundred pages, splendidly illustrated with charts and diagrams, engraving, pen and ink, and colored, is a masterpiece of the art of the pen. ## WILL NOT SWEAR

She Refuses to Use an Objectionable Phrase in the Play "When Knighthood Was in Flower."

Chicago, Nov. 20.—Chas. Majors, author of the book "When Knighthood Was in Flower," of which a dramatized version is now under rehearsal at the new Illinois Theater, insists that Julia Marlowe shall do as the fine ladies of those days did and make use of a small but objectionable word beginning with "I" and looking thus "—" when it appears in print.

"Throw up the play or speak the lines as they are written," commanded the author.

"Never," retorted Julia again.

"Then throw up the play," was the inexorable command of the author.

"I will not utter the vulgar word," cried Miss Marlowe. "I swear I will throw up the play. I will not offend the ears of my friends by lowering myself to that depth to depict the vices of even Mary Tudor."

When the groom reached the would-be bride he found her in tears, by the smouldering embers of her father's house. But the party congregated around the ruins and the minister pronounced the young couple husband and wife.

Thursday Hobson drove up to a raging creek near Lightfoot which had overflowed its banks on account of recent hard rains, and was on a scolding rampage. While debating whether to cross Robert Willingham, overland mail carrier, whose route is from Ripley to Glynn, Tenn., drove up and upon questioning the shoe drummer and learning his fears regarding crossing the stream, laughed and told him, that he, Willingham, intended crossing, with which he reined his horse and entered the creek. On reaching the center, horse, wagon and driver were swept away by the rushing waters. ## A DECOROUS DEATH

By Emily Zola.

COUNT DE VERTEUIL is 30 years of age. His blood runs in the count's veins. His family is one of the most ancient in France. Yellow gold lies in the count's coffers. His fortune is one of the largest in France. He is a member of the Académie, a deputy, a patron of the arts.

Countess Mathilde de Verteuil is 30. Blond is Countess Mathilde—blond and beautiful. She is tall and slender. Her rounded shoulders, her satin skin, her golden hair, her stony eyes—all these make the matronly beauty of the countess the envy of younger rivals.

The Verteuil household is a thoroughly respectable one. Dame Lumor's tongue never wags concerning it. Their marriage had been one of eminent good taste, said the world—both wealthy, both of good family. And then they had lived as husband and wife for nearly six years. And their two children—Ferdinand, in the army, and Blanche—had been so well brought up. And they had married Blanche very well. It is true they no longer affect the sentimental husband and wife. But what of that? If each has a separate suite in the Verteuil abode, do they not treat each other with the utmost courtesy? They are perfect models of deportment, and nothing can be said against either.

One night Madame de Verteuil returns from a ball at two o'clock. She is fatigued, is Mme. Mathilde. As her maid dresses her, she says:

"The count, Madame, is somewhat unwell this evening."

The countess yawns. "Ah," she murmurs. Then, as she extends her arm beneath the luxurious coverlet, she says to her maid: "Wake me at ten to-morrow, Julie. The modiste is coming."

At breakfast the next morning the count does not appear. Madame is concerned. She goes to inquire after his health. The count is desolated; he presents his excuses to Madame, but he cannot quit his chamber. Madame is more concerned. She herself sees the count. She enters. She finds him in bed, extremely pale, but extremely trim. He is a perfectly respectable invalid. The room shows no vulgar signs of disorder, no vials scattered around, no furniture misplaced. Three physicians are whispering in a corner, and two well-trained domestics move noiselessly about the room. This is no common invalid—it is my lord the count of Verteuil who lies ailed. This is not your low and plebeian "sickness"—it is illness, trim and proper, and ceremonious illness which is here.

"You are unwell, I see, my dear," says the countess. "I hope it is nothing dangerous?"

The count smiles feebly—a somewhat strained smile.

"Not at all," he answers, with an effort. "All I need is rest and quiet. I am sorry to have put you to so much trouble."

The days pass. The chamber remains, as ever, well arranged. The smug and shaven faces of the servants are expressionless. Nothing is changed—nothing save the master. And he is much changed. For he lies at death's door, and he knows it. Physicians shall not dole out weak platitudes to Count de Verteuil. Sometimes, as he lies staring grimly at nothing, the count's face shows weariness.

In the world of fashion the countess tells her friends that her husband is "a little indisposed." She could not say that he was more, for Mme. Mathilde had not changed her life. He drives, he dines, he parties, and he smiles all the round. But nevertheless, morning and evening the countess dutifully visits her husband's chamber.

"Better, I hope, today, my dear?"

"A little better, I think, my dear Mathilde."

would speak to him, he motions her from him with a feeble gesture. The moments pass away. There is no movement in the silent room with its face against the wall. One of the physicians leans toward it.

"All is over," he says, as he closes the dead man's eyes.

Count de Verteuil has died, as he wished, alone.

The morning of the funeral the Verteuil mansion is filled with sorrowful friends. The son and son-in-law of the count receive the guests with the mute politeness of affliction. And the mourning ladies, who are not common mourners, The nobility, the army, the magistracy, the senate, the academy—yes, come they to Verteuil's funeral.

The procession leads out for the church: the hearse is magnificently sombre; black-plumed, black-draped, its pallbearers, too, are magnificent in their way—a duke, a field-marshal, a prime minister and an academician. The black-gloved, black-crowned and black-coated line files slowly through the streets, while the busy passers-by stop and uncover.

And the countess? Well, she is completely broken down with grief, say the relatives. The countess is at home.

At the church the ceremony lasts for nearly two hours. The organ thunders forth its lamentations, the singers wail theirs, while from torches held by the green flames cast a sickly pallor over the gathering.

"Is not Paul, the celebrated tenor, going to sing to-day?" asks one mourner of another.

"Yes," says a mourner No. 2, an elderly beau, who has just been staring through a single eyelid at a pretty mourner: "yes, I believe he is. Ah, that is his voice! What method! What range! Eh?"

"Yes, indeed," says mourner No. 1. "Never heard him sing better in my life. Ah, he's a pity poor Verteuil can't hear him, isn't it? He was very fond of him."

It is a beautiful day. And as the carriages roll along the route for the cemetery, the windings of the roads take the hearse out of sight from time to time, therefore it is not to be wondered at if the mourners sometimes forget it. The disjointed bits of conversation would seem to imply as much.

"Are you going to the seaside this month, my dear?"

"No, not until August. We start to-morrow for our country place, and—"

"Well, as I was saying, the letter fell into his hands, and that was the cause of the duel. But it was only a scratch—the merest scratch in the world. I dined with him that evening at the club, and he won twenty-five."

"Yes, I believe the meeting of stockholders takes place to-morrow, and they want to make me a director. Don't know whether I'll accept or not. I'm very busy now, and—"

Serench, serench! The carriages have quitted the road and are on the graveled ways of the cemetery. The talking ceases. The tomb of Verteuil is at the extreme left—a magnificent marble structure, where carved angels in paroxysms of stony weep over the dead and gone Verteuil. The coffin is placed before it, and the funeral discourse begins.

The count is pictured as a man who had not been cut off in his prime; who had regenerated the political condition of his country; a man reared for private virtues; a man who had encouraged agriculture and the arts; a man who had made a study of political economy and sociology; a man whose laws were irreparable.

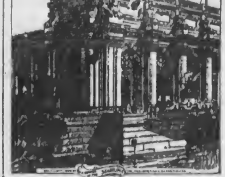

Such is the eulogy that it is difficult for those on the outskirts to catch all the words. An elderly gentleman, with his hand to his eye, is listening, with interest, to the eulogy. It catches these words:

"The qualities of his great and generous heart, his beautiful—"

THE STADIUM.

Greatest Year in Athletics at Pan-American Exposition.

During the Exposition of 1901 at Buffalo the greatest athletic sporting carnival that ever took place in America will be held. For the purpose of this grand carnival the largest sporting arena ever erected in America is to be built. It is to be known as the Stadium, and will cover nearly ten acres, having a seating capacity of 12,000. It will be supplied with numerous entrances and broad aisles, so that the comfort of the spectators will be assured. The large space beneath the seats will be used for exhibits, being the equivalent of a very large building. The arena will contain a quarter mile track and ample room for the various pageants and exhibitions of live stock, automobiles, farm and road machinery, vehicles, etc. At the western end of the Stadium is a large ornamental building, which forms the main entrance to this grand arena.

EXPOSITION NOTES.

Brief Items Relating to Progress of the Pan-American Exposition.

The Chittenden Pottery Company has been granted the exclusive privilege of selling pottery at the Exposition.

Frederick Law Olmsted, who advocates the abolishment of billboards because of their unsightly and ugly character, is the landscape architect who laid out Delaware Park, Buffalo, a part of which is to be used for the Pan-American Exposition in 1901.

We have only admission for the countess. The city deserves to be filled with visitors during the life of the Pan-American Exposition and to reap a rich harvest of honor, glory and substantial gain.

"We have never advertised the resources of our state half so much," says The Times-Democrat of New Orleans in an article upon the Pan-American Exposition, in which it urges an adequate representation of the resources of Louisiana. The same may be said of other states, and the opportunity now offered by Buffalo is of exceptional value.

The enthusiasm and interest displayed by the people of southern California in the preparation of their great display of products for the Pan-American Exposition present a lesson and an example for all citizens to contemplate. American enterprise seems to have a very high opinion of the glorious climate of California. The Californians purpose to make a very large and effective display.

One of the most conspicuous features of the Niagara Falls landscape now is a mammoth sign handsomely lettered thus: "Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, N. Y., 1901." There are several similar signs placed where thousands of people passing and repassing upon the great railroads may in this way have their attention called to the great event of next year which so vitally interests all the states and countries of the western hemisphere.

ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

Will Be Represented by a Fine Building and Exhibit at Buffalo.

The Argentine Republic will have a building and exhibit at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo next summer which will represent fittingly the progressive institutions and commercial and industrial prosperity of that South American republic. The government of 1900 has been appropriated by the Argentine government for this purpose. Argentine merchants, and especially those who appreciate the importance of representation at the Pan-American Exposition, many agricultural and industrial organizations are notifying the minister of agriculture that they intend to send exhibits. It is probable the government will have its exhibit at the Paris exposition brought to Buffalo at the close of the French fair.

Buffalo's Mayor and the Exposition.

The Hon. Conrad Dietz, mayor of Buffalo, the home of the Pan-American Exposition, has great faith in the success of the enterprise and is much pleased with the progress that is being made on the work of construction. He says: "I frequently drive out there and look over the buildings. It is phenomenal the rapidly with which the work is carried forward. The men who are directing the Exposition are able calculators, and they are going to make this enterprise the wonder of the world. Outsiders are becoming enthusiastic over it. Thousands of people who did not go to the World's fair at Chicago will come to the Pan-American. Let every body prepare to receive them and give them a good time."

EXPOSITION MAKING.

THE PAN-AMERICAN TO EXCEL IN MANY PARTICULARS.

The Most Delicate and Intricate Plastic Work Ever Attempted For Exposition Purposes—Color and Horticultural Embellishment.

The development of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo is cheered with profound interest throughout the western world. Almost every day shows some new feature of the magnificent enterprise completed. Some new tower rises aloft its ornamental pinnacle, some new dome presents its rounded top to the sky, or some new decoration of form or color is added to the beautiful banquet of architectural loveliness.

Never was there an Exposition so novel, so unlike what the world has learned to expect, as this. With the aid of the studies of the Egyptian builder's art and gables to look back upon with fond remembrance and admiration, the world has wondered if all that has been promised for the Pan-American would be realized. It can only judge by the present state of the vast work, the millions of visitors to Buffalo during the exposition season, while the studies of the Egyptian builder's art and gables to look back upon with fond remembrance and admiration, the world has wondered if all that has been promised for the Pan-American would be realized. Coughs Kill

We know of nothing better than coughing to tear the lining of your throat and lungs. It is better than wet feet to cause bronchitis and pneumonia. Only keep it up and you will succeed in reducing your weight, losing your appetite, bringing on a slow fever, and making everything exactly right for the germs of consumption.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

kills coughs of every kind. A 25c. bottle is just right for an ordinary cough; for the harder coughs of bronchitis you will need a 50c. bottle; and for the coughs of consumption the one dollar size is most economical.

"My cough reduced me to a mere skeleton. I tried many remedies, but they all failed. After using the Cherry Pectoral I immediately began to improve, and three bottles restored me to health. I believe I owe my life to it."

BAGGING BIG GAME.

Gracey Hunting Club Having Excellent Sport in Arkansas.

From letters received from members of the Gracey Hunting Club now in Arkansas the boys are evidently having fine sport and are bagging big game. The rain in that state was not so heavy as in Kentucky and there has not been a day, probably, since the boys left that could not be termed an ideal one for hunting on White river, where they are in camp. At last accounts J. J. Reed, W. M. Hancock and Lock Humphries had each brought down a deer and all of the members of the club who went on the hunt this season have good shooting. Besides deer, many geese, ducks, quail and squirrels have been bagged. The health of the crowd has been good and a royal time is being experienced.

Mr. Lackey is a son of Esq. B. D. Lackey, a prominent and influential farmer, and is a young man of excellent character and promise. His bride is a young woman of rare beauty and sweetness of disposition, whose accomplishments and attractiveness have rendered her very popular in social circles.

ISLE OF PINES

Will Remain in the United States' Possession.

The United States will retain possession of the Isle of Pines, whatever the final disposition of Cuba, says a Washington dispatch to the Journal and Advertiser. It will be fortified and a strong garrison will be kept there.

Lying south of the western end of Cuba, the Isle of Pines commands the western or Yucatan entrance to the gulf and forms an important outpost for the defense of the Nicaragua Canal.

While Secretary Root visited Cuba he went to the island and recognized its strategic importance. The State Department now holds that under the treaty of peace the Isle of Pines passed to the United States. Secretary Root holds a similar view.

The northern side of the island, that next to the Cuban shores, is admirably adapted for the purpose of the Government. It is high, thickly studded with valuable woods and the climate is so healthful that prior to the war a health resort for pulmonary patients was established there.

Naval officers say that Siguanea Bay, on the northwest coast, will with but little dredging, afford an excellent and safe harbor.

DECEMBER WEATHER.

Many Storms With a Sweeping Cold Wave Predicted.

Following is a summary of the character of the weather for December, as figured out by Hicks.

Storms of rain, with thunder and lightning will set in about Dec. 3. These storms will reach their culminating crisis about 5th or 6th and will be followed by much colder. From 8th to 11th look for storms of rain and snow. The reactionary storm period, central on the 13th to 16th, will bring sleet and snow, winding up with blizzards and gales and change to great cold.

From the 17th to the 23rd will bring a great crisis in winter weather. An extremely high barometer, high north winds and a great cold wave will come on the heels of these great storms. The south should count on much rain, some tropical thunder storms, and a good share of the snow, sleet and cold following.

On and touching the 25th, 26th and 27th, look for return to storm conditions, and change to warmer, and more rain and snow.
